

For a HOWLING Good Time On Your Way to the Outer Banks

...Nature's buffer zone, sprawled between the urban mainland and the popular stretch of North Carolina's Outer Banks.

Here is where the red wolf howls. Bald eagles and northern harriers soar across the sunset. American alligators live at their northern limits near ancient pocosin forests. Conservation gems like Buckridge Coastal Reserve, Palmetto-Peartree Preserve, Partnership for the Sounds, Pettigrew State Park, Pocosin Lakes National Wildlife Refuge, Red Wolf Coalition and the bayside Eastern 4-H Center help highlight Tyrrell County's remarkable natural wealth.

And Tyrrell County has even more to offer...history, art, unique festivals, lodging, dining and shopping opportunities...all right here.

We recognize ecotourists and other visitors as special people and we welcome you to Tyrrell County. We trust that you will enjoy these remarkable gifts of nature and help us protect them.
